

Four Seasons Hotel New York

FOUR SEASONS HOTEL NEW YORK (www.fourseasons.com/newyorkfs) towers 52 stories above the city's select shopping and business districts. Designed by I.M. Pei, this Mobil five-star, AAA five-diamond property is known for its 368 oversized guest rooms, including 63 suites, which are among New York's largest, as well as similarly spacious bathrooms.

The hotel's numerous property upgrades in recent years include the Presidential Suites. Guests who want to take their stay up a notch can request the $35,000-per-night Ty Warner Penthouse, the world's most expensive hotel suite. Based on the 52nd floor, this 4,300-square-foot space offers a stunning 360-degree view of Manhattan.

Diners have a selection of wonderful venues to choose from, including the hotel's newest addition, The Garden restaurant and wine bar; TY, an intimate lounge with a welcoming fireplace and plush seating that offers light dining and a selection of aperitifs, spirits, and champagne; the Calvisius Caviar Lounge; and the celebrated L'Atelier de Joël Robuchon, the recipient of the 2007 James Beard Foundation's Best New Restaurant award.

A redesigned spa and fitness center is available to those eager to relax or to get in a good workout, and offers massages, and body, facial, and hand and foot treatments.

Guests looking to conduct business have access to the Executive Meeting Suites on the fifth floor, and for those who are eager to host events, there is a wide variety of suites and rooms to choose from on-site.

The Four Seasons New York is led by Christoph Schmidinger, who also oversees Four Seasons Hotels in Atlanta and Philadelphia, and is one of the most dynamic hoteliers in the world with a true understanding of service, quality, and value. The property is managed by Toronto-based Four Seasons Hotels and Resorts. ●

Clockwise from the upper left: The Garden restaurant; Presidential Suite living room; night view from the Presidential Suite; Lobby lounge; Penthouse library; Christoph Schmidinger; Penthouse living room; 57th Street entrance